

Riverview Promotes Daniel Cox to Chief Credit Officer

Company Release - 03/05/2014 09:00

VANCOUVER, Wash., March 5, 2014 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Riverview Community Bank, a wholly owned subsidiary of Riverview Bancorp, Inc. (Nasdaq:RVSB), today announced the promotion of Daniel Cox to executive vice president and chief credit officer by the board of directors.

"Since joining Riverview almost twelve years ago, advancing from a credit analyst to a commercial loan officer to running credit administration, Dan has made a major impact on our company. He has been instrumental in dramatically reducing our problem credits, crafting new policies and improving the loan approval process to better serve our stakeholders," said Ron Wysaske, President and Chief Operating Officer of Riverview Community Bank. "As a member of the Executive Management Team, Dan's input on the Banks' strategies and execution of the company's business plan will be extremely valuable."

A Clark County native, Cox graduated Summa Cum Laude from Washington State University – Vancouver with a Finance degree. He is also an Honor Roll alum of the Pacific Coast Banking School. An active mentor in our local schools, Cox is also a Past Treasurer and Endowment Chair for the Washougal Schools Foundation and Past Board Member of Camas-Washougal Chamber of Commerce.
